MINERS REGULARS DEFEATED

A battle near Santa Clara—Patriots in the Quinta and the Two Thousand men of the regulars defeated the insurgents in a short order—American troops made a political prisoner.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Spanish news—A great engagement near the town of Santa Clara on Oct. 2. Fifteen hundred regulars under General Valdez were defeated by the insurgents, who took the town and set it on fire. Two thousand Spanish troops were quartered near the town. When the fire reached them, they fled from the city. At Bucoito, Spanish forces were surprised while attempting to cross the river. A Spanish officer, Lieutenant Francisco Lujan, was killed in trying to rejoin his troops. The Spanish troops were killed and the town was captured. The Spanish column under Lieutenant Torib was surprised near El Corral, where the Spanish was killed. The Spanish were killed and the town was captured. MINERS AND OPERATORS.

Report of Committee and Adoption of Resolutions.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—The afternoon yesterday was taken up with the report of the "uniformity" committee, appointed at the morning session. The discussion of the report resulted in the adoption of resolutions embodying the following: That all "company stores" be abolished on or before Jan. 1, 1896, and after that date no mine owner, superintendent or other employee shall be directly or indirectly connected with or interested in such store, that the recognized screen of the district shall not exceed 600 superficial feet, with one and one-half inches between the bars, the screens to be free from all obstructions; that miners shall be allowed a checkweighman on every tipple, he to be paid by the mine; that a committee of six operators and six miners shall govern the appointment of checkweighmen, and shall endeavor to have him made a state official; that this convention adjourn to meet on the first Tuesday of December to arrange the scale for 1896, at which time, if uniformity exists, and the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal company and others refuse to pay the scale rates, then the miners and operators bind themselves to consider the New York and Cleveland company rate as the price for the district, and shall so declare.

HOLMES HAD THE KEY

Which Belonged to the House Where Howard Pictzel Was Killed.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 12.—Interest in the H. H. Holmes case is revived here by the reappearance of Detective Geyer of Philadelphia. He turned up unexpectedly in Irvington, going to the house where Howard Pictzel was murdered and his body buried. Geyer fitted a key from his pocket in the front door night latch. It worked perfectly. The key had been found on the person of Holmes after his arrest in Philadelphia. Dr. Thompson, who lived in the house before Holmes occupied it, recognized the key as the one he had himself carried for two years. Geyer arranged to take Dr. Thompson, Dr. Bryan and other witnesses from Irvington to Philadelphia on Oct. 26. He will take with him the remains of the Pictzel boy, including the teeth (mounted). He will also take the clothes identified by the family.

AN AIR OF MYSTERY

Surrounds a Woman Injured in Pennsylvania Wreck at Macon.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12.—The West Penn hospital has received a patient surrounded with considerable mystery. It is the woman who was injured in the Pennsylvania railroad wreck at Macon Station on Wednesday evening who refused to give her name. She was taken in at the hospital as a private patient and was accompanied by the man who was with her when the accident occurred. The man positively refused to reveal his identity. He told the attendants to call her Bertha. He would not tell whether or not they were married. The woman is suffering with a fractured jaw.

New Mail Arrangements.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—On Oct. 16 the new mail arrangements for carrying ocean mails will go into effect. The first trip will be made by the St. Louis. At that time the United States will begin paying the new American lines of steamers $1 per mile for carrying the mail from New York to Southampton.

A Murderer Hanged.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Harry Lyons was hanged Friday for the murder on the night of Feb. 9 of Alfred B. Mason, a scenic artist. Lyons attempted to rob Mason on the street, and during the struggle which followed Lyons fractured the victim's skull with the butt of a revolver.

Train Plunged Into the River.

PETERSBURG, Oct. 12.—The engine and baggage car of a passenger train on the Grand Junction branch of the Grand Trunk railway plunged into the Ontonagon river near here, through a lock-bridge which had been carelessly left open. No one killed.

Her Love Not Kept Secret.

Having a Good Time. LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 12.—The Duke of Marlborough is having a good time with the Duke of Devonshire in the Blue Grass stock farms.

BUSINESS TOPICS

Discussed in Dun's Weekly Review.

INDICATIONS ARE NOT ALL ROSY.

While Cotton Goods Are Advancing, Manufactured Products of Wool, Hides and Leather Show a Decline—Iron Lacks Firmness by Reason of Decreased Demand For Most Kinds.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—R. G. Dunn & Company's weekly review of trade says: The price barometer gives indications that are not entirely favorable. Cotton goods go up with increasing evidence that the cotton crop is short. Prices of other manufactured products, of wool, hides and leather, all show some decline, a general abatement in new orders being the principal cause. With an immense volume of business, not much exceeded in the largest month of the exceptional year 1892, and with evidence that in several important branches the volume has surpassed that of any previous year, there is a growing uncertainty about the near future of industries. Money markets are neither strained nor threatening, foreign exchanges no longer raise apprehension, and all fears about the great northern crops are past. There have been few advances in wages of labor within the past month, and only a few works have been closed by strikes for an advance. The production of pig iron Oct. 1 was the largest in the history of the country, 201,214 tons weekly, against 191,029 Sept. 1, 195,000 tons having been the highest in 1932. Stocks unsold are not stated, but substantially the whole production is in execution of past orders. On the other hand, new orders are exceedingly small. There is a marked decrease in almost all finished products, tank steel is lower, bar iron is offered by some at concessionary prices are not firm, the structural demand has greatly increased, and wire rods declined $1 to $2.99, with lower wire and a much reduced demand for nails.

Dead Easy.

California Wonder Does Up Cattle in Two Straight Falls.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 12.—Dan McLeod, the California wonder, easily disposed of J. C. Cattle here last night in a catch-as-catch-can wrestling match. Cattle, who bears a splendid reputation in the wrestling world, and who was predicted as a good trial horse for McLeod, who is after Champion Burns, was thrown in straight falls, the boys lasting six and one-half minutes and seven and one-half minutes respectively. McLeod was the aggressor and his agility more than made up for the superiority in weight in his opponent. Fifteen hundred people witnessed the event.

Will Formulate a Treaty.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The representatives of the British, Canadian and United States government will meet at the state department next week to formulate a treaty for the settlement of the claims of British vessel owners whose sailing craft were seized by United States revenue cutters prior to the arbitration of the Paris arbitration and antecedent to the modus vivendi.

Big Sale of Mining Property.

DENVER, Oct. 12.—Dennis Sullivan, T. G. Burke, Senator H. C. Bousinger and some eastern capitalists have incorporated the Vendome Mining company and bought all the properties of the Herbert company and some adjacent mines, comprising about 40 acres in Gilpin county. The price paid is in the neighborhood of $480,000.

Lord Sackville's Pamphlet.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Chronicle says this morning on the pamphlet history of Lord Sackville, former British minister at Washington: "The feeling existing with reference to the appearance of the Sackville pamphlet is one of unqualified regret. This finds its strongest expression, perhaps, in diplomatic circles."

Preacher Convicted of Felonious Assault.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Oct. 12.—Rev. Samuel Howard Chubb, pastor of the Evangelical Church of Plymouth, near here, was yesterday convicted in the criminal court of felonious assault on Rachel Htner, 17, a member of his flock.

Coal Still Going Up.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Anthracite coal prices, which advanced only a day or two ago, were raised still higher yesterday.

LIBERAL DEMOCRATS

Cause Emperor William a Great Deal of Trouble.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The Paris correspondent of The Times telegraphs as follows: "In the course of an interview upon European affairs with Prince Lobanoff, the Russian minister of foreign affairs, he said: 'The thing which directly troubles Germany, and which concerns all Europe, is that Prince Bismarck has set up a parliament in which he has established universal suffrage. By this action he has permitted the entrance of Liberal Democrats into parliament, and they are now justly the source of anxiety to Emperor William. It is difficult to foresee how he will succeed in warding off this peril. I can understand this being Emperor William's chief anxiety, and it shows his sagacity.'"

PLOT TO LIBERATE PRISONER.

Duplicate Keys Found That Fitted Harry Hayward's Cell Door.

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 12.—The county authorities admitted yesterday that they had discovered a plot to effect the escape of Harry Hayward, the condemned murderer of Catherine Ging, from county jail. Duplicate keys had been made in some way which fitted his cell door and the outer door. These keys have been found by one of the sheriff's deputies, and when tried fitted the locks perfectly. The sheriff had kept the matter quiet and laid a plan to capture the conspirators in the act. A bribe had been offered to one of his deputies, a fact which the deputy promptly reported to Sheriff Holmberg. The publication of the facts will prevent the attempt, but arrests are likely to follow.

REVOLUTION IN COREA

Promptly Suppressed Through Efforts of Japanese Troops.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A dispatch to The World from Tokyo says: The outbreak in Corea has been entirely quelled through the prompt action of the Japanese troops. Their presence in Seoul, the capital, prevented a great loss of life. The king and crown prince are safe, but the queen is missing. An order given Thursday to Japanese warships to go to Corea was revoked yesterday. No additional troops have been sent there. It is stated on the highest authority that no international complications are expected to arise from the incident at Seoul (Japanese interference to put down the uprising).

THE ROOF FELL IN

Terrible Accident at Cleveland Rolling Mill.

THREE MEN KILLED OUTRIGHT

And Seven Others Wounded—Of the Injured Men It Is Thought at Least Two Will Die—Disaster Occurs Without Warning and Employees Are Unable to Account For It.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 12.—The huge roof of the casting room at the river blast furnace of the Cleveland Rolling Mill company fell in without warning at 8:30 o'clock this evening, killing three men outright and injuring seven others. The furnace had been tapped a short time before and a gang of 30 men were covering the cooling iron with sand when the accident happened. Those killed were crushed to death.

Killed.

Charles Wakefield, 27, laborer, unmarried. Joe Terfis, 40, keeper of furnace No. 5, man of family. Tony Gorman, 27, keeper of furnace No. 6, unmarried.

Injured.

Joe Bealey, legs broken and back and head cut. Peter Rabliski, legs broken and hurt internally. Joe Barrish, head cut. John Lockish, head cut and body bruised.

It is feared that at least two of the injured men will die. The men in charge of the furnace are unable to account for the disaster. The exact amount of the loss to the company can not be ascertained.

LIVE ELECTRIC WIRE

Starts an Early Morning Blaze on Coal Docks at Toledo.

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 12.—The Toledo and Ohio Central's immense docks in East Toledo caught fire early this morning from a live electric wire, and despite the heavy rain that is falling the fire is now burning fiercely and in all probability the docks will be totally destroyed, the loss reaching at least $100,000, as there is a large amount of coal on the docks awaiting transportation by vessels.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report

ORDEAL IS OVER

So Far As Durrant's Cross Examination Is Concerned.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.—After a three days' ordeal Theodore Durrant yesterday left the witness stand. District Attorney Barnes tried to draw from the defendant admissions that he was well acquainted with the use of bromo seltzer, as used in medicine. Durrant's replies indicated that he had devoted the night to a study of the compound, as he noted that it had been conversed with Dr. West about it in the jail. He was able to give its analysis and detailed its pathological effect.

For the first time during the trial Durrant yesterday pleaded ignorance. In reply to a question by Mr. Barnes, he said he did not know what an alibi was until after his trial began.

While testifying yesterday the prisoner became badly confused at times, and when questioned regarding his experience at Cooper college became so mixed in his statements that he had to refer to a card that he carried in his pocket to set himself right. He became noticeably confused and rather testy in his replies when examined in regard to the interview that he had with Gilbert F. Graham, a fellow student, at the city prison, when the man to furnish him Durrant asked Graham to furnish him with a copy of the notes of Dr. Chumey's lecture, remarking: "If I had those notes I would be able to prove an alibi."

After Durrant was excused Charles T. Lanahan, who was said to have been mistaken for Durrant by Pawnbroker Oppenheim, was recalled to the stand for further examination. Little progress had been made, however, when court adjourned until Tuesday morning.

NICARAGUA CANAL

Address Delivered at Liverpool on Its Position and Prospects.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—A. C. Colhoun addressed the Liverpool chamber of commerce yesterday on the position and prospects of the Nicaragua canal. In the course of his remarks he said that he regarded it as indisputably the best of the interoceanic canal projects, and he estimated that by about 1905, assuming that the canal should be commenced in 1896, 7,000,000 tons of goods would pass through. This would bring Japan, China and Australia nearer to the Atlantic cities of the United States than they now are to England. The benefit of the canal to America would be infinitely more than it would be to Europe.

Chloroformed and Robbed.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., Oct. 12.—Two masked men entered the house of Calvin Thompson, a wealthy farmer at Canby, near Lockport, 10 miles east of this city, while Thompson was sitting in the dining room with his housekeeper reading. The men chloroformed both, ransacked the house, securing a sum of money said to be nearly $1,000, which they found in the desk.

The Reservoir Gave Way.

SCRANTON, Pa., Oct. 12.—A storage reservoir containing 2,500,000 gallons of water and owned by the Lackawanna Iron and Steel company, burst Thursday night. A girl was swept along a quarter of a mile and was rescued by firemen. Hundreds of factory girls crossed the path of the water a few moments before the break occurred.

Celebrated at New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Cubans in New York City celebrated at Chichester hall the twenty-seventh anniversary of the beginning of the 10 years' war for Cuban independence. There were 2,000 persons in the hall. About $1,500 was contributed for the war at the close of the meeting.

Why Do They Suicide?

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The large number of suicides of firemen and coal passers on German vessels committed probably in temporary insanity brought on by intense heat or overwork, has led the German government to examine the subject and to ask the views of other nations.

Shot Himself.

LOUISVILLE, Oct. 12.—Edward F. Kessler, 47, manager of the branch of the American national tobacco works in this city, committed suicide at his home by shooting himself in the left temple with a revolver.

Four Persons Killed.

Doty's Latest Winning. Claude Doty won two races at Fostoria Thursday, a one-mile and a half-mile. The Times has this to say of the half-mile race, which was won in 1:10.

The finish of the half mile open yesterday was one of the hottest ever rode in the city, and was won by Claude Doty who by a fine spurt threw Oldfield, who held the lead, back to second just at the tape.

The Times, however, credits Doty to Toledo, thus obligating itself to Marion to the extent of an apology.

Charles Fletcher, employed in the erecting room of the Huber works, put his finger in a hole broken in the big shears for cutting iron, thinking it a perfectly harmless experiment. He found very different, however, and had his index finger on the left hand cut clear to the bone, a long ugly gash.

EVERYBODY DANCED

A Bowery Saloonist Sees All His Patrons But One.

A pedestrian in passing along the Bowery Friday night was startled at hearing the pop, bang of a pistol, and looking into the door of a saloon was somewhat surprised at what he witnessed. The proprietor had evidently been drinking and had a number of the colored employees of the American Asphalt company dancing. When they refused to dance he shot holes in the floor at very uncomfortable proximity to their feet.

The colored fellows, frightened until they almost turned white, ran out when the saloonist turned his attention and gun to a white man. The white man needed all of his toes, and, taking the gun away from the man, in turn made the saloonist dance while he shot holes through the floor all around him.

A SET OF ROGUES.

(Copyright 1895 by Macmillan & Co.)

AFTER XXXII

In the set of our hearts I was greatly affected by perceiving a shadowed figure, long familiarly known to us in the dim light.

"Mother, come to supper," his friend whispers. "Let us step into this."

"I return," he says. "Put on a bold."

"This only one."

"I am going out and looking at the stars before we had passed the bridge, turning, we find that 'tis not in her husband's cloak."

"Where is the husband, child?" asks in as he recovers from his astonishment, taking Moll by the hand.

"No husband, father," answers Moll.

"Why, sure he hath not turned you of doors?"

"No, he'd not do that," says she, "I am ten times more wicked than I."

"What folly then is this?" asks her father.

"This no folly. I have left him of my own free will, and shall never go back to him. For he's no more my husband than that home is mine (pointing to the court). Both were got by the same means, and both are lost."

Then briefly she told how they had been turned from the gate by Peter, and how Mr. Godwin was now as poor and homeless as we. And this news throwing us into a silence with new bewilderment, she asks us simply whether we are going.

"My poor Moll!" is all the answer he can make, and that in a broken, trembling voice.

"This no good to cry," says she, "dashing aside her tears that had sprung at this word of loving sympathy and forcing herself to a more cheerful tone. 'Why, let us think that we are just awake from a long sleep to find ourselves no worse off than when we fell a-dreaming. Nay, not so ill,' adds she, 'for you have a home near London. Take me there, dear.'"

"With all my heart, chuck," answers her father eagerly. "There at least I can give you a shelter till your husband can offer better."

She would not dispute this point, though I perceived clearly her mind was resolved fully never to claim her right to Mr. Godwin's roof, but only begged we should hasten on our way, saying she felt chilled, and in passing Mother Fitch's cottage she constrained us to silence and caution. Then, when we were safely past, she would have us run, still feigning to be cold, but in truth, as I think, to avoid being overtaken by Mr. Godwin, fearing maybe that he would overtake her will. This way we sped till Moll was fain to stop with a little cry of pain, and clapping her hand to her heart, being fairly spent and out of breath. Then we took her betwixt us, leading her our arms for support, and falling into a more regular pace made good progress.

We trudged on till we reached Croydon without any accident, save that our point Moll's step faltering, and she with a faint sob weighing heavily upon our arms, we stopped, as thinking her strength overtaxed, and then, glancing about me, I perceived we were upon that little bridge where we had overtaken Mr. Godwin, and he had offered to make Moll his wife. Then I knew 'twas not fatigue that weighed her down, and gauging her feelings by my own remorse I pitied this poor wife even more than I blamed myself, for had she revealed herself to him at that time, though the night have shrank from marriage, he must have loved her still and so she had been spared this shame and hopeless sorrow.

At Croydon we overtook a carrier on his way to London for the Saturday market, who for a couple of shillings gave us a place in his wagon with some good bundles of hay for a seat, and here we were rest for our tired bodies, though little for our tormented minds, till we reached Marsh End, where we were set down, and so, the ground being hard with frost, across the marsh to Greenwich about dark. Having the love of his workshop with him, Dawson took us into his lodgings without disturbing the other inmates of the house, who might have been maddened to see us enter at this hour with a woman in a man's cloak, and no covering but a handkerchief to her head and Moll, taking his bed, we disposed ourselves on some shavings in his shop to get a little sleep.

Dawson was already risen when I awoke, and going into his little parlour I found him mightily busy setting the place in order, which was in a sad bachelor's pickle, to be sure—all dirt and up with odds and ends of turning, unwashed plates, broken victuals, etc., just as he had left it.

"Sho's," when I was in a whisper, "and I'd have this room like a little palace when she comes into it, so you lend me a hand, Kit, and make me more noise than you can help. The kitchen's through that door. Carry everything in there, and what's in the passage out of the window into the road."

Setting to with a will, we got the parlor and kitchen neat and proper, plates washed, the victuals put away and everything in its place in a minute. Then, leaving me to fight with the parlor, Dawson goes forth, mauling with a basket on his arm, in high glee. And truly to see the pleasure in his face later on, making a mess of bread and milk for one upon and as King's 222 in another for two was well worth the trouble in her chamber, as we were to have, for this was an occasion for morning.

rather than grief, and this was one not to want of food, but to the fond, simple nature of him, he being mainly enough in some ways, but a very child in others. He did never see farther than his nose, as the saying is, and because it gave him joy to be Moll, he did not think more, he must needs think it fully that she will quickly recover from this reverse of fortune, and that all will come right again.

Our dear Moll did nothing to damp his hopes, but played her part bravely and well to spare him the anguish of remorse that secretly gnawed her own heart. She met with a most successful countenance, and the old man, in the parlour, the glow of his face, the fire of his eyes, and the glow of his heart, and he declared she could not do them suit. Then she would see her father work his little, to his delight, and he would make her some cups for eggs as being more to his present fashion than eating them in his own hand.

"Why," says he, "it's an old bed post in the room that will suit you to a nicety. But first I must see our landlord and engage a room for Kit and me, for I take it, my dear," adds he, "you will be content to stay with us here."

"Yes," answers she, "it's a most cheerful view of the river from the window."

She tucked up her skirt and goes to buy herself in house hold matters, and when I would have helped her of this office she begged me to go and leave her father company, saying with a pitiful look, in her eyes that we must leave her some occupation, or she should worry. She was pale, then, were dark lines beneath her eyes, and she was still, but I saw no outward sign of grief till the afternoon, when, coming from Jack's shop unexpectant, I spied her sitting by the window, with her face in her hands, bowed over a piece of cloth we had bought in the morning, which she was about to fashion into a plain gown, as being more suitable to her condition than the rich dress in which she had left the court.

"Don't you think I," she is a sad awaking from the dream of riches and joy."

Upon a reasonable occasion I told Dawson we must soon begin to think of doing something for a livelihood—a matter which was as remote from his consideration as the day of wrath.

"Why, Kit," says he, "I've as good as £70 yet in a hole at the chimney back."

"Are, but when that's gone?" says I.

"That's a good way hence, Kit, but there never was such a man as you for going forth to meet troubles half way. However, I warrant I shall find some jobs of carpentry to keep us from being our bread when the pinch comes."

Not content to wait for this pinch, I resolved I would go into the city and inquire there if the booksellers could give me any employment, thinking I might very well with some good success.

I spied her sitting by the window musing on honesty, now I had learned the folly of roguery. Hearing of my purpose the morning Lewis about to go, Moll takes me aside and asks me in a quivering voice if I knew where Mr. Godwin might be found. This question staggered me a moment, for her husband's name had not been spoken by any of us since the catastrophe, and it came into my mind now that she designed to return to him, and I stammered out some foolish hint at Hurst Court.

"No, he is not there," says I. "But I thought maybe that Sir Peter Lely—" "Aye," says I. "He will most likely know where Mr. Godwin may be found."

"Can you tell me where Sir Peter lives?"

"No, but I can learn easily when I am in the city."

"If you can write the address, and send him this," says she drawing a letter from her breast. "She had written her husband's name on it, and now she pressed her lips to it twice, and pining, the warm kiss in my hand she sent away, her poor mouth twitching with emotion. I knew then that there was a thought in her mind of seeing her husband again."

I turned the letter with me to it only, wondering what was in it. It was of new yet I think it contained but a few words of explanation and farewell, with some prayer maybe that she might be forgiven and forgotten.

It was where Sir Peter Lely lived, I thought, went to his house, and he was at home. I went in, and I found Mr. Godwin sitting at a table, and he was as pale as death, and he was as thin as a stick, and he was as old as I was, and he was as much of a man as I was, and he was as much of a woman as I was, and he was as much of a child as I was, and he was as much of a fool as I was, and he was as much of a knave as I was, and he was as much of a villain as I was, and he was as much Burglar Ennis Boasts of His Achievements in Crime.

HE WAS BROUGHT UP ON BEER.

Says He Was Born a Thief and Has Been a Thief From His Youth Up—Tells His Experiences—Utterly Lacking in Moral Sense.

George Ennis, the young man who has been "turning off" the people of Rutherford, Bloomfield, Plainfield, Harrison and other Jersey towns, and who was arrested in Jersey City and herded to the world
as the head of a gang of the most desperate burglars in the country, was interviewed in jail the other day.

"I want to ask you a few questions about your self," said the reporter.

"Say, I've had a pretty tough time," said Ennis. "I was down in Trenton two and six, and I been to Snake Hill half a dozen times. I was born a thief, and I been a thief from my youth up."

"What were you in Trenton for?"
"For stealing $5,000 worth of brass
from the Erie railroad. I'll tell you now,
I was born at the Five Corners in Jersey City, and when I was six years old I was sent to Snake Hill (meaning Snake Hill almshouse), and I runned away from there and got picked up for swiping stuff from a man. Then I was sent to the reform school at Jamesburg."

"Where did you learn to be a burglar?"
"Oh, I always knowed, but I took me
first lesson at the reform school, swiping stuff from the keepers. All the kids did it. I took it from there, and then I was out till I swiped $5,000 in brass from the Erie. I took it a brick at a time and got six months for it. They nailed me and sent me down the road for six months
and six and got paroled."

"What have you been doing since then?"
"Swiping things when I was out and resting when I was in. I was sent to Snake for six and costs just before I did the job that these jays want me for. I've

OLIVER BOSWELL'S COURTSHIP—IN CAMP MEETING TIME.

BY SOME ONE.

CHAPTER I.
FOUND HIS LOVE.

Ava Blanchard sat in her room window, looking out at the green trees that were waving their green mantles timidly in reply to the sitting sun. Her jasmine roses and other flowers were just blooming, which filled the air with their pleasant smells. The wind was blowing her sunny hair every now and then.
It was now the last day of June. She saw a tall
ticket in his hand. His eyes were as black as a lead. Ava thought he would have made a handsome photo. He stood at the window for a moment till he caught Ava's eye in his own
and then disappeared. Ava read the invitation to her mother's half an hour later. It was an invitation to Delia Smith's birthday party.
Next day, the time set for the party, the same
man stood at the gate awaiting Ava's arrival.
Just as Ava came tripping along he made her
a pleasant bow. "Good morning," he said.
"Good morning, Mr. Boswell," said Ava.

"Miss Delia Smith said I might have the pleasure of escorting you to the dinner, provided you were willing. 'With pleasure,'
said Ava. "It's a pleasant day for a party,
isn't it?" "Quite pleasant indeed. I expect we will have a nice time today," he said as he smiled courteously. "I anticipate such," said
Ava.

Why fritter away one's time reading
"The Prisoner of Zenda," written by a foreigner, while here in America we have such pure basswood honey right from the great natural North Carolina bee gum of literature?

On first reading this chapter I thought
I detected an intimation of carefully concealed humor, but on meeting the author and talking with him I saw at once
that such was not the case.

"And what are your literary methods?" I asked as I passed the prunes to him, for we were at table in my own
home, and I believed that a conversation
between two such men would read well
perhaps in a piece I thought of writing
for the paper.

"How do you think of some things
to write, pray?" I asked, helping myself
to another glass of champagne, for I am willing to open anything when a
literary man comes to see me. "Tell me
all about it," I said, emerging from the ground very much refreshed. "How do
you live before you have these thoughts?
Do you live plainly, or can you cerebration
on rich food?"

"Well," he said, "when I began
writing, I was very poor and dieted a good deal, but now I eat everything that I can get hold of, and then force myself
to write whether I feel like it or not.
Howells and me are friends in regard to
that. We don't believe in inspiration much."

"What were the circumstances under which you wrote 'Oliver Boswell's Courtship'?" I asked.

"Well, I was feeling real good. I don't know as I could ever get off another work like it is if I tried 10 times.
I felt out a sight."

"Of course you did not let it turn
your head when you awoke to find yourself famous?"

"Oh, my patience, no! I'm just the same exactly. I laugh and cut up around home all the time. I'm the greatest case to carry on over you saw. Half the time I forget that I wrote 'Oliver Bos-
well's Courtship' and other works."

"And have you not been criticised by
the more ultra and puritanical for your
offhand method of introducing Oliver
and the heroine? You remember that he stood at the window for a moment till he caught Ava's eye in his own and then disappeared."

"The next day," said I, giving him
the paper's nose of the steer with some
bit of chaff or other, "he meets her and says 'Good morning,' whereupon Ava says, 'Good morning, Mr. Boswell.' Now,
for any one but a green goods man
or some from Hendersonville I would say that his manner was informal and detrop. One naturally exclaims while reading it: 'Ah, there, Oliver! Naughty, naughty Olive! Did not some one make this criticism in the Brevard Hustler?'"

"Presumably so, but honey sweet the mean every word of it. When I say that I know the author personally, and that he has been in my house, I do not say it

to bring myself into public notice, but

It was now the last day of June. She saw a tall

handsome photo. He stood at the window for
a moment till he caught Ava's eye in his own
and then disappeared. Ava read the invitation to her mother's half an hour later. It was an invitation to Delia Smith's birthday party.
Next day, the time set for the party, the same
man stood at the gate awaiting Ava's arrival.
Just as Ava came tripping along he made her
a pleasant bow. "Good morning," he said.
"Good morning, Mr. Boswell," said Ava.

"Miss Delia Smith said I might have the pleasure of escorting you to the dinner, provided you were willing. 'With pleasure,'
said Ava. "It's a pleasant day for a party,
isn't it?" "Quite pleasant indeed. I expect we
smiled courteously. "I anticipate such," said
Ava.

A MAN OF MANY QUARRELS.

Captain Armes Ready to Add to His Record of Six Courts Martial.

Captain George A. Armes of the United States army, retired, who was arrested the other day for sending an insulting letter to Lieutenant General Schofield, is a man of many quarrels and the experience of being placed under arrest is not new to him. He has been six times court martialled. Once he was acquitted, once reprimanded.

It has been claimed that young writers
without reputation cannot get into print, while old fossils with nothing but a glorious past get all the big prices and monopolize the magazines.

This is not true.

As an instance of this I have just received for review the advance sheets of a story entitled "Oliver Boswell's Courtship—In Camp Meeting Time."

Below I give without change the opening page of chapter 1. When I say that I have enjoyed this story to the full, I mean every word of it. When I say that I know the author personally, and that

he has been in my house, I do not say it
to bring myself into public notice, but
to satisfy a craving that I know the public must feel to know all that it possibly can, without being rude, of this new writer:

I detected an intimation of carefully concealed humor, but on meeting the au-

that such was not the case.

"And what are your literary methods?" I asked as I passed the prunes to
him, for we were at table in my own
home, and I believed that a conversation
between two such men would read well
perhaps in a piece I thought of writing
for the paper.

"How do you think of some things
to write, pray?" I asked, helping myself
to another glass of champagne, for I
am willing to open anything when a
literary man comes to see me. "Tell me
all about it," I said, emerging from the
ground very much refreshed. "How do
you live before you have these thoughts?
Do you live plainly, or can you cerebration
on rich food?"

"Well," he said, "when I began
writing, I was very poor and dieted a
good deal, but now I eat everything that I can get hold of, and then force myself
to write whether I feel like it or not.
Howells and me are friends in regard to
that. We don't believe in inspiration

"Well, I was feeling real good. I don't know as I could ever get off an-
other work like it is if I tried 10 times.
I felt out a sight."

"Of course you did not let it turn
your head when you awoke to find your-
self famous?"

"Oh, my patience, no! I'm just the same exactly. I laugh and cut up around
home all the time. I'm the greatest
case to carry on over you saw. Half the time I forget that I wrote 'Oliver Bos-

"And have you not been criticised by
the more ultra and puritanical for your
offhand method of introducing Oliver
and the heroine? You remember that he

"The next day," said I, giving him
the paper's nose of the steer with some
bit of chaff or other, "he meets her and

says, 'Good morning, Mr. Boswell.' Now,
for any one but a green goods man

JIM WAS MISTAKEN

OR JAMES MADE A MISTAKE WHICH?

Detective McEldowney invites a young woman to his boarding house but the mistress of the house invites her to leave—Mac Explains.

James McEldowney, detective, has made a mistake, and he says he is afraid that it will cause him a great deal of trouble. Jim wrote a letter to Lou Valentine, in which he asked her to call on him at his boarding house 353 Pearl street. The woman stopped at his boarding house Thursday afternoon. Her reputation is not one of which she can boast and Mrs. Sherwood, McEldowney's landlady, did not like to have her in the house, and she was given a polite invitation to leave.

The story got noised about the city to the effect that James and the girl had been ejected from the house in rather scanty attire, and to give color to this statement the letter fell into the hands of those who are not falling over themselves to see Jim's reform movement progress and it was used against him.

The girl called on McEldowney at his boarding house Friday afternoon and he states that he did write Miss Valentine a letter, but that the woman who called was altogether a different person from the one who had been pointed out to him as the person he wanted to see, and that he was not anxious to see the one that called on him and further stated that he was working up a little clue and wished the assistance of the woman that had been pointed out to him as Lou Valentine to help him along.

AT THE Y M C A

The Membership Committee Enjoys a Spread—Foot-ball Material

The membership committee of the Y M C A, with some invited guests enjoyed an excellent spread Friday night in the association rooms. Besides electing a number of new members, a liberal offer was made for more. The association needs two hundred new members badly in order to close the fiscal year in good shape. To anyone bringing in twenty-five new members by the 1st of November a one year's ticket will be issued free. To anyone bringing in forty new members a life ticket will be issued. Here is an excellent chance for some young man to secure a life membership.

The foot-ball men are at active practice and some excellent material is developing. Occasionally some inexperienced but ambitious member kicks at the ball and lights on the rear of his neck, while the ball dances croquetishly around him. Boys will make a good guard. Ross, who has played "end" before, will probably hold that position on the association eleven on the 19th. Dan Evans will make a good half and some phenomenal runs and bucks may be expected, as Dan has the reputation of being a sprinter.

The gymnasium classes are all in working order, but not largely attended yet, as all have not provided themselves with shoes for the gym floor. The business men's class is Tuesday and Friday at 1:30 p m. The seniors Tuesday and Friday at 8 p m.

MADE PERMANENT

An Organization of the Cecilian Glee Club Perfected

Between fifty and sixty of Marion's best lady vocalists met at Prof Cobb's studio Thursday night to make a permanent musical organization of the "Cecilian Glee Club" which so delighted the great audience at the Mid-summer Festival.

In a few words Prof Cobb explained the object of the meeting and the plan of the work to be taken up by the association. All present were ready to join such an organization and so expressed themselves as soon as an opportunity was given.

A constitution was adopted and the following officers elected: Mrs Alice Edwards White, president; Miss Abbie A Gast first vice president; Miss Ada L Bowen, second vice president.

An adjournment was taken until next Thursday night. Meeting to be held at Prof Cobb's studio.

The music loving people of Marion will be delighted in the near future by the presentation of the sacred cantata of Esther, the Beautiful Queen, which is to be given by this organization assisted by the Mendelssohn Vocal Art Club another association which will be organized next Wednesday evening at the studio of Prof Cobb.

KATHARINE TOWNY Secretary

Township Supervision

After one month of united effort on the part of Township Superintendent I W Stoll and his ten excellent teachers, the eleven districts of this township are systematically organized and each teacher is doing the same work. Inform tests are given each month and so far has proven a stimulus to the district scholars. The attendance has been improved and a greater enrollment is one of the results of organization. The sub district No 2 known as the Merchant school and taught by Miss Gertrude Lawrence is the banner school for the month ending Sep 29. It is hoped that all the townships of Marion county will avail themselves of the privilege they have of township supervision and thus place their schools on an equality with the city graded school.

The U. S. Gov't Reports show Royal Baking Powder superior to all others.

ON A HOT STOVE

A Small Child Is Thrown and Severely Burned

A child of John Kager, of north Main street was quite severely burned Friday. While the children were at play an older child accidentally threw the little unfortunate onto a hot stove. The little ones suffered the greatest injury, sustaining the most extensive burns. The attending physician anticipates no serious results from the accident.

Some of the above was written it is learned that an injection of morphine was given the child in the forenoon when nearly resulted in his death, and it laid in a comatose condition from that time until 9 o'clock in the evening. Drs A B and J A McMurray were called and worked with the little one or several hours, but went away believing that the child would not regain consciousness.

The doctors state that it was a case of poisoning caused by the morphine the dose having either been too large or the child was unable to stand any whatever. Its recovery was an agreeable surprise to all.

TALK OF A BARBECUE

A Big Time Contemplated for the Cochran Meeting.

There is talk of holding a barbecue at the Cochran Republican meeting. The meeting is to be held in a grove near that place on the 23d of this month, and several of the best speakers on the Republican stump are to be present, including Bushnell and McKinley.

In addition to this there is now some talk of a big barbecue to occur there the same day. A barbecue is something that is not often seen in this part of the country and if one is given at Cochran it will be a large one, and the fatted calf will be killed in honor of the great leaders.

Still Open

Upper Sandusky Union

Marion sold thirty-three tickets to Upper Sandusky Thursday. This is about one-fourth as many as Upper Sandusky usually sends to her neighbor. But then Marion is improving in her courtesies and we have hopes.
